

GAS KILLS WOMAN AND RICH REALTY MAN IN HIS HOME

Couple Found Dead on Floor in His Williamsburg Bachelor Apartment.

William C. Schmidt, a Williamsburg real estate man reputed to have been worth close to half a million, was found dead early today in the kitchen of his bachelor apartments in the building owned by him at No. 415 Graham avenue. Near him on the floor was the body of Emily Betz, a dressmaker who lived at No. 61 Graham avenue. Both had been asphyxiated by gas which flowed from a heater beneath the boiler back of the stove.

John Boyle, caretaker of the Senate Building at No. 384 Graham avenue, an office building owned by Schmidt where he maintained his own suite of offices, noted that Schmidt did not appear at his office at the customary hour of 7:30 o'clock today, and, after waiting half an hour, went to Schmidt's apartments to see if anything was wrong. As soon as he climbed the stairs to the second floor Boyle smelled gas.

He found the door to the three rooms occupied by Schmidt locked and went down to the street to summon Policemen. Together they broke in the door. The gas was so strong that neither could go further until fresh air had cleared the apartment.

NO INTIMATION OF DEATH BY SUICIDE.

In the kitchen they found Schmidt, partially dressed, lying on his face between the door and the stove. About ten feet away from him lay the body of the woman, fully clad. There was no note or other indication that they had died in a suicide pact. Nor was there any trace of drinkables, which might explain the accidental opening of the heater cook.

Schmidt was known to have been intimate with Emily Betz for some time. He was seen by a friend last night at Grand street and Graham avenue. Schmidt said he was waiting for somebody. The presumption of the police today was that he met the Betz woman there and took her to his apartments. Emily Betz had no friends or relatives in Williamsburg so far as the police could determine. She was about thirty-five years old.

William C. Schmidt, who was forty-seven years old, was one of the sons of the late Fred Schmidt, who was killed by a Graham avenue car twelve years ago and who left a fortune to be divided among several sons. William is said to have become alienated from the rest of his family after a division of the estate. He invested his portion of the inheritance in real estate in various parts of Williamsburg and realized heavily on all his investments. He never married.
